Manslaughter Cases At Westery

Trial of John and Caterino Cisco and John DiFonti Begun—Continued to Friday Next—Soldier Drowned Off Fort Mansfield—Today's League Games—Memorial Sunday Services.

Three persons accused of manslaughter, John and Caterino Cisco for the death of Daniel Sullivan and John DiFonti for the death of Michael Riley, were partially tried in the Third district court, Judge Oliver H. Williams, Friday. These are the alleged wood alcohol poisoned whiskey cases, in connection with the many recent sudden deaths in Westery and vicinity, and are the only ones where the accused are charged with manslaughter. Attorney General Greenough and Attorney Everett A. Kingsley represent the State and Judge John W. Sweeney is counsel for defendants in both cases.

The first called for trial was the joint case against John and Caterino Cisco, who are accused of selling to Daniel Sullivan the poisoned whiskey that caused his death on April 12. Patrick Brady testified he knew the late Daniel T. Sullivan for eighteen years. Saw him at John Cisco's house just before six o'clock on the evening of 22d of April. Witness drank several glasses of beer there and saw Sullivan buy a pint of whiskey from Mrs. Cisco, and identified the bottle that contained the liquor. Half an hour later Sullivan left Cisco's to go to his home in White Rock. Quarter of an hour afterward witness left Cisco's house.

Witness testified he was 42 years of age and had resided in Westery for 22 years, and had known Sullivan 18 years, and known Cisco for 15 years. When witness went to Cisco's house, Mr. and Mrs. Cisco were there, some children, Mr. Sullivan and another man, who was an Italian, whose name he did not know. Mr. Sullivan was under the influence of strong drink when witness arrived at Cisco's house, but he did not stagger. Sullivan told Cisco to go home as he could get no more drink there. He saw Sullivan drink beer which was served by Mrs. Cisco and she took the pay. Cisco was lying on a lounge and took no part in the transaction. Without Sullivan buying the bottle of whiskey he put it in his pocket and witness noticed the bottle had ammonia label. Mr. Sullivan died the day after the whiskey was purchased.

William Lafayette testified that he and Sullivan on the day before he died at 7:30 in the evening near home of witness in Varietyville. Sullivan was drunk, fell, and witness picked him up and started him toward his home. Witness saw Sullivan fall down twice, and a bottle was in an inside pocket. Witness said this it was about fifteen minutes' walk from Cisco's to the point where Sullivan fell.

Timothy Sullivan and Mary Sullivan were the next witnesses. Dr. John L. May was called to see Sullivan at 7:30 in the evening. There were several suspicious circumstances in his condition that indicated wood alcohol poisoning, and he called Dr. William Morgan, medical examiner, to call the medical examiner. He attended the autopsy and Medical Examiner Morgan took charge of the stomach. Witness was told that Sullivan had drunk liquor the night before and only water on the day of his death. He identified the fatal liquid. The reason why he had consultation was as a precautionary measure in view of other wood alcohol poisoning cases. Witness did not think the effects of the drinking of whiskey would continue for twenty-four hours.

Dr. H. H. Scanlon testified that he was called in consultation to see Sullivan, who was apparently dying, under conditions that prevailed regarding sudden deaths it was decided to call the medical examiner. When witness returned with the medical examiner and chief of police, Mr. Sullivan was dead. He identified the bottle and the bottle that contained about a teaspoonful of liquid, which he took to Professor Whitney of Harvard for analysis. The doctor had the certificate of Professor Whitney's analysis.

At this point, the attorney general stated that it was impossible for Professor Whitney, who made the analysis, to be in court at the present session, as he was engaged in a murder case in Boston, but if there was no objection by counsel for defense.

he would introduce Professor Whitney's certificate of analyses as substitute for oral testimony. Judge Sweeney objected, as he wanted opportunity to question Professor Whitney. Attorney Greenough acknowledged the justice in the objection, and the further hearing in the case was continued to next Friday.

Patrick Brady, who has been detained as witness in the case at the state's expense since the coroner's inquest, is retained in custody, failing to furnish a bond of $100. The present hearing being merely preliminary, Brady will be under pay of the state of Rhode Island, with leisure quarters at the Kingston jail until the September term of the superior court.

James Roberts, accused of being a common drunkard, pleaded nolo. Upon representation that he was the main support of his wife and child, 33 years of age, and upon promise to reform, Judge Williams suspended judgment.

The trial of John DiFonti, accused of manslaughter in causing the death of Michael Riley by selling wood alcohol poisoned whiskey, was then commenced. Mrs. Mary Riley, whose husband, Michael Riley, 33, testified that her husband drank whiskey on Sunday and died Monday. There was whiskey bought three times from DiFonti on Sunday. The first time Mr. Riley bought the whiskey himself and the children bought on the other occasions. The last half-pint was bought in a beer bottle and after drinking that stuff Mr. Riley went to sleep on the floor, then became restless, very thirsty and became ill. Dr. Briggs was called, and Mr. Riley died soon thereafter. Witness resided near the Klondike quarry in Narragansett, in the town of Charlestown, and near DiFonti's house. Her husband drank half a pint of whiskey Saturday night when he got from DiFonti. Sunday morning Mr. Riley went and got another half pint, and furnished the bottle. Later Sunday two sons were sent for another half pint and Arthur Bliven took a drink from the bottle. They poured the liquor in a glass and drank twice each, and Mr. Bliven drank the most of it. Later a son and nephew or witness went to DiFonti's and got another half-pint of liquor in a beer bottle. After drinking from this bottle, Mr. Riley lay down under a tree in the garden and went to sleep, and upon awaking he came into the house and complained of feeling drowsy and sick. Of the last bottle Mrs. Riley poured some of the contents into another bottle and sent it out to her husband. The original bottle was placed in a closet and what was left in that bottle was taken by Dr. Briggs. On Monday morning, Mr. Riley said he wanted no more of that whiskey. On Monday morning, Mr. Riley was able to walk downstairs, although he could not see, and fell forward upon the floor, and was then put into bed. He called for witness and the children just before the doctor arrived and then became unconscious.

Timothy Riley, age 17, son of Michael Riley, deceased, testified that he bought whiskey at John DiFonti's, on Sunday morning, and bought it from Marguerite, a daughter of John DiFonti. He brought the whiskey to his father and drank some of it. If it. Witness was accompanied by his brother Michael on the first visit and his cousin was with him the second time.

The evidence of Mrs. Riley relative to the subsequent sickness and death of Riley was corroborated by another son of deceased, testified to going to DiFonti's Sunday morning with his father, and that he saw his father buy a half pint of the whiskey while his father remained outside. He gave the whiskey to his father. He made a second trip for whiskey at DiFonti's with his brother Timothy.

Dr. A. B. Briggs was called to Michael Riley's house at 9:45 on a Monday morning, and he was of opinion that Riley was poisoned, and that he died within fifteen minutes after the doctor arrived. Witness took charge of the bottle from which Mr. Riley drank, and which contained a small quantity of liquor, which had been taken to Professor Whitney for analysis. Dr. Briggs said it was evident that Mr. Riley died under suspicious circumstances, from wood alcohol poisoning, and declined to give certificate of death and notified the medical examiner; he would have to say he had not found the other wood alcohol poisoning cases.

Medical Examiner Rouse made the post-mortem examination of Riley and had sent the stomach, brains and bottle containing a small amount of liquid for analysis.

As in the Cisco cases, Judge Sweeney objected to the presentation of the certificate of analyses, preferring the testimony of Professor Whitney, and this case was continued to Friday. At that time Professor Whitney will testify and evidence for the defense will be introduced.

Pitcher Wilcox of Mystic and Pitcher Glennon who helped Westery win the championship of the Rhode Island League, last season, are now with the North Adams team. In a game with Pittsfield at North Adams, Wilcox started to pitch for North Adams, says the Evening Eagle, and for three innings he did well enough. Then he began to falter. The smile that hovered about his face began to fade and the hits began to accumulate. In the fourth he was hit safely twice, but a double prevented any score. In the fifth four singles and a wild pitch resulted in two runs being chalked against the team.

There was a change in his manner. He did not feel so confident as when he started the game. In the sixth two more singles off his delivery was enough and the captain had the blanket placed around Wilcox and he was trotted out. He was not much of a puzzle as Sullivan pushed out a two-bagger at the beginning. In the seventh inning a couple of more singles off Glennon resulted in a Pittsfield victory.

Judge Edward M. Burke of Westery was elected great senior saganamore at the annual meeting of the Improved Order of Rhode Island, held in Providence. The other officers elected are: Edmund C. Roberts, great sagan; James Monroe, great junior saganamore; William E. Carpenter, great prophet; Lewis L. Stevens, great chief of records; Charles C. Phispe, great wampum; William Moon, great mishenena; William Hanson, great sanna; Evan Mason, great guard of the wigwag; Walter Weyman, great guard of the forest; Walter E. Carpenter, great representative for two years.

Private William J. Ward of the Eighty-eighth company, Coast artillery corps, stationed at Fort Mansfield, was captured in a small skiff on the reservation at 9:30 Thursday night and drowned. With Private Charles Powell, he went out about 9 o'clock to haul some lobster pots and, after landing Powell, started out for a little practice row. When about a thousand feet from shore the skiff capsized in the heavy sea.

Powell started to assist his companion but became so exhausted that he could not return to shore unassisted. Every effort was made to recover the body, but without success up to Friday evening. The Watch Tower life savers are assisting in the search for the body of the drowned soldier. Ward is 33 years of age, and enlisted from Westport, Conn., where his mother resides.

Westerly high school's baseball nine, champions of the Eastern division of the State league, easily took a league game from Windham high school here on Friday 19 to 1. The visitors from Windham threw the game away on errors in the first two innings. The score:
